

Alcohol and the Law

The police can take away alcohol from under 18s in a public place.

Driving when above the drink-drive limit risks lives. Those who are caught may face fines, losing their licence and prison.

If someone is over 18, they will need to prove it!

It's against the law to sell alcohol to someone who is drunk or to buy alcohol for someone who is drunk.

No one can buy or be served alcohol if they are under 18 in a licensed premises.

It's against the law for anyone aged 18 or over to buy alcohol for under 18s (buying by proxy).
